PRICE TWO CENTS

FIRE INSURANCE
MEN ARE COMING

State Association of Mutual Companies Will Hold Convention Here.

LATTER PART OF AUGUST

Charles W. Stock Named as Chairman of Local Committee on Arrangements.

Announcement was made this morning that the annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Association of Mutual Fire Insurance Companies
will be held in Gettysburg three days
in the latter part of August.

W. M. Deisher, of Reading, chairman of the committee on convention
arrangements, was in Gettysburg Saturday, completing plans for the coming convention in conjunction with representatives of local mutual fire insurance companies.

Charles W. Stock, Broadway, secretary of the Adams County Mutual Fire Insurance Company, has been designated chairman of the local committee on arrangements for the convention.

The Eagle Hotel has been selected as the official headquarters of the delegates to the convention, while sessions will be held at St. Francis Xavier Hall. The exact dates for the convention have not been definitely decided upon, but they will be in August.

There are 290 mutual fire insurance companies in Pennsylvania and all but ninety of them are members of the State Association. Each company is allowed one delegate, but usually more than one member comes from each company. It is expected that between 200 and 250 fire insurance men will be in Gettysburg
during the three days of the convention.

Wilmer Crow is president of the State Association of Mutual Fire Insurance Companies, with Elwood Hoot, secretary, and L. P. G. Fegley, treasurer.

In Adams county there are five
mutual fire insurance companies.
They are the Gettysburg, the Adams
County, the Mummaburg, the Liberty
Independent and the Littlestown.

COUNTY MILK PRODUCERS
TAKE UNITED ACTION

Adopt Resolution Whereby They Will Continue to Sell Milk to Former Company.

The Adams County Milk Producers' Association met in the arbitration
room at the Court House Saturday evening. John C. Bream, president, called the meeting to order and explained to about twenty milk producers present the necessity for united action in view of the present milk situation in Adams county. The following motion was adopted and ordered spread on the minutes:

"Whereas, the receiver for the Pennsylvania Milk Products Company
has been appointed, and believing that matters may be more easily facilitated and payments made to those to whom the Pennsylvania Milk Products Company is indebted for milk, be it resolved,

"That the members of the Adams County Milk Producers' Association
favor continuing selling their milk
to the Pennsylvania Milk Products Company of Harrisburg, for which it is understood all milk delivered
will be paid as due."

GRADUATE OF COLLEGE
GETS INTO HALL OF FAME

Dr. Edgar Fahs Smith Named As Having Attained International Fame.

Dr. Edgar Fahs Smith, graduate of Gettysburg College, class of 1874, former provost and now
president of the University of Pennsylvania, is one of the thirty-three Americans, twenty-one of whom are now living, who, a special committee
of the American Chemical Society announced Saturday, has attained international fame. Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, framer of the pure food law, is another chosen by the specially appointed group of leaders in the organization.

Dr. Smith, a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity here, is a frequent visitor to Gettysburg. At exercises when the College Y. M. C. A.
was dedicated, Dr. Smith was the principal speaker. At commencement in June his class will hold its fiftieth anniversary.

erly winds.

New Gettysburg-McSherrystown
Road Is Assured in the Spring

Hard-Surface Highway 16 Feet Wide Will Complete Route From This Place to Hanover Excepting For One Mile; Bids Are to be Asked.

Work of constructing that part of the Bonneauville road in Mt. Pleasant township, including Main street in Mc-Sherrystown, will be started this spring, it was learned authoritatively
at the district office of the State Highway Department here this morning.

When work is to start depends upon whether bids for the two jobs are given with the first letting this spring
by the Highway Department or in the second or third lettings, it is stated.
It is not likely, however, that work
will be started later than July 1.

The exact type of road to be laid has not been definitely determined, but it will be either a concrete pavement,
such as the Harrisburg and Chambersburg roads, or a concrete base with a bituminous top, such as many of the so-called asphalt streets in Gettysburg, it is declared.

The road in Mt. Pleasant township and the street in McSherrystown borough will have a width of sixteen feet.
The cross-section, or thickness of the road and street, has not been decided upon.

On the Bonneauville road, known as Route 231, 5.658 miles will be constructed in Mt. Pleasant township, from Union township on the east to Straban township on the west. The length of the stretch in McSherrystown is 1.09 miles.

When these two road construction
jobs are completed, an excellent hard surface road, with the exception of one mile, will exist between Gettysburg and Hanover, thereby affording a route shorter than any other between the two boroughs. The one mile of road which will not be of permanent construction will be between the Mt. Pleasant township line in Straban township to the point where the Federal avenue begins, just a short distance east of Gettysburg.

On the eastern side of Mt. Pleasant township, the proposed hard road will connect with the penetration macadam road in Union township, extending to the borough limits of McSherrystown, where it will connect with proposed hard surface street to be laid this summer.

Quitclaim releases have been signed by all but one of the property owners along Route 231 in Mt. Pleasant township for the Adams county commissioners. The one person whose release has not been signed resides in Chambersburg and no answer has yet been received by commissioners
as to whether or not he will sign
the release. All of the property owners along the road are anxious to have the hard surfaced road constructed and willingly signed the releases.

The road and street are known as State-aid roads, that is the State pays
for one-half of the construction cost,
while the other half is divided up between the county and the property owners along the route. In the case of the Mt. Pleasant road, the county will pay one-fourth and the property owners one-fourth of the cost. In McSherrystown borough, a similar proportion of distributing the county's share of the expense of building
the street, will be agreed upon, it is reported.

RISE IN MERCURY
IS NOW PREDICTED

Change is Predicted Following
Unusually Cold Week-End
in Adams County.

At the conclusion of one of the coldest week-ends experienced in Gettysburg for some time, weather predictions this morning called for a rise in the mercury, declaring that the coldest weather is over for an indefinite period.

The weekly weather outlook for this section of the country calls for fair weather until Wednesday or Thursday, when unsettled conditions will set in, accompanied by snow or rain.

The thermometer neared the zero
mark Saturday night, and rose a little more than ten degrees during the day Sunday. About 9 degrees was the minimum temperature during Sunday night.

As a result of the latest cold wave,
ice several inches thick has formed
on creeks and ponds in Adams county,
and ice skating has become one of the major sports for young and old alike while the opportunity presents itself. It is said that not for some time have residents here enjoyed as much ice skating as has been presented this winter.

SEES GRAND RUSH
AT LAST MINUTE

Secretary Wright Warns Against
Delay in Securing 1924
Driving License.

Of the two million persons who, it is estimated, will apply for licenses to operate motor vehicles in Pennsylvania in 1924, less than 125,000 have made application, the Department of Highways announced today.

"Unless prospective drivers make early application," said Secretary P. D.
Wright of the Highway department,
"it looks like March 1 will see scores
of thousands of them subject to arrest should they attempt to drive
without a license. Our Automobile Division can care for all applications
if it is given time, but it cannot issue a million cards the last week in February. The fact that a man has a title to his car and that his car is registered and has tags does not entitle him to drive after March 1
without a driver's license."

Operators' licenses cost $1. Applications will be found at the majority of Pennsylvania garages. An affidavit is not necessary when the driver had a 1923 license.

WILL REPORT ON 1923 ROLL CALL

Miss Margaret McMillan's Report Will be Turned in on February 1.

On February 1, Miss Margaret McMillan, secretary of the Adams county Red Cross chapter, will make her final report to the Washington Division headquarters of the National Red Cross of the results of the seventh annual roll call conducted throughout the county from November 11 to November 29 last year.

According to Miss McMillan's report as she has it prepared ready to send in, Adams county will turn in 1210 memberships in the Red Cross,
with the total amount of money subscribed of $1,384.05.

In Gettysburg alone 595 annual memberships in the Red Cross were secured, netting $700.30. The total number of memberships exclusive of Gettysburg is 615 and the total amount of money subscribed is $683.75. In addition, $25.50 was subscribed for Christmas work alone.
Twenty-five communities throughout the county participated in the 1923
roll call, Miss McMillan's report shows.

Following is an additional list of Red Cross members from various sections of the county:

300 Deer May Be Taken From South Mountains Near Here

Farmers' Hopes and Sportsmen's Fears Are Aroused Over Announcement of Game Commission; Reports of Damaged Orchards Are Investigated.

Sighs of relief from farmers of Adams county and fear and apprehension on the part of the sportsmen of this locality have been the result of the announcement by the State game commission that 300 deer may be trapped in the South Mountain section
this year for restocking purposes in other parts of the State.

Difficulties experienced by the State game commission in handling the deer situation in that portion of Adams county which is situated in the South Mountains are enumerated in a recent report by Seth E. Gordon, secretary.

Prompted by the fact that for the past several years deer have been causing farmers and orchardists in certain portions of Adams, Cumberland and Franklin counties much concern, exhaustive investigations have been conducted by the department.

In some sections, considerable damage to cultivated crops and fruit trees has occurred, says the report. In a number of the complaints investigated, says Mr. Gordon, it was evident that the actual damage was considerably over-estimated and not sufficient to warrant the killing or removal of the deer, but in others the damage was quite serious.

On the other hand, the report says,
in some of the sections where the damage done was quite considerable,
investigators found the landowners
unwilling to have the deer removed or killed.

No Funds For Damage
No funds are available to pay for the damage done by deer in orchards
and among growing crops, Adams county farmers have discovered. An effort to secure such an appropriation has been made at the last two sessions of the Legislature, but without success. Later, the law was changed to permit landowners, or their regular employees, to kill deer
under certain conditions if caught causing damage or immediately
after, providing they are destroying trees or crops in a material way. Before killing deer, the law warns that the landowner must be in position to prove that material
damage is being done.

Any deer thus killed by farmers
may be cared for in the usual way.
The entrails are to be removed, the carcass hung up and the kill reported to the game protector of the section.

To Pay $25 For Each Deer
"The Game Commission at a meeting on January 3 authorized its Secretary to offer to any landowner,
or lessee, or the regular employees
of any landowner or lessee, where deer have been causing damage or annoyance, $25 for each deer trapped
on private lands open to public hunting, properly crated and delivered to the railroad station in good condition fit for stocking purposes. The Game Commission will pay expressage and return empty crates for further use.
Any person desiring information concerning the building of traps that will be most effective under the conditions prevailing in each instance should apply to this office and we will gladly assist them in any way we can.

"To protect persons trapping deer
for stocking purposes, we will also

and Clyde Shultz, grandsons.

THOMAS M. BRENNAN

Thomas M. Brennan, father of Dr.
Michael J. Brennan, of McSherrystown, died at his home in Shamokin,
this State, on last Thursday evening,
it is learned here. Death was due to heart trouble. Mr. Brennan was mining superintendent of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company. Dr. Brennan was at the bedside of the stricken man when death
overtook him.

Mr. Brennan is survived by his wife,
his son, Dr. Brennan, McSherrystown,
and by eight daughters.

When Lewis Steps Out; Both Approved by G. O. P.

(By Associated Press.)

Harrisburg, Jan. 28.—Auditor General Samuel Lewis, of York, today announced himself a candidate for the Republican nomination for State Treasurer in the primaries in April to succeed Charles A. Snyder whose term
as treasurer expires this year.

Mr. Lewis' term as auditor general
also expires this year and Colonel Edward Martin, of Washington, announced last night he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination
to succeed Mr. Lewis.

Both candidates are understood to have the endorsement of the State Republican organization.

STOCK REPORT

Active Issues Show Early Losses;
List Steadies by Noon, However.

(By Associated Press.)

New York, Jan. 28.—Extensive profit taking took place in various sections of the list during the morning
bounty of some of the high priced specialties being used as a screen to cover distributions elsewhere. Early losses in the active issues ran from 1 to 3 1/2 points, but persistent accumulation of some of the low priced
oils and dividend paying rails steadied the general list around noon. Call money was again plentiful, the opening being 4 per cent.

NEGRO PAYS DEATH PENALTY

(By Associated Press.)

Bellefonte, Jan. 28.—Lawrence Roberts, negro, of Venango county, today paid the penalty for the murder
of his father-in-law, James Lawrence,
by electrocution at the Rockview Penitentiary. While in the Venango county jail Roberts made an attempt to escape. He was brought to the death house late Saturday and on the train made another attempt to escape. He grabbed the revolver
from the pocket of a deputy sheriff
and attempted to shoot him.

HILL INVITES PINCHOT TO JOIN ENFORCEMENT PROBE

Harrisburg, Jan. 28.—Governor Pin-chot today said he had received a letter from Representative Hill, of Maryland, inviting him to join in a Congressional investigation of the office
of Federal Prohibition Commissioner Roy Haynes, but declined to make any comments on the invitation other than
to say he would prepare an answer to Congressman Hill.

the woman died of poisoning.

DEFECTIVE FLUE IS
CAUSE OF SLIGHT FIRE

Log Catches Fire in Home of E. M.
Bender, Carlisle Street.

A defective flue which allowed sparks from the stove pipe to set fire to a log in the home of E. M. Bender, Carlisle street, was the cause of a slight but stubborn blaze this morning. No call was sent in for the Gettysburg Fire Company, the flames being extinguished by Mr.
Bender, James Weikert and Allen B.
Plank. Considerable difficulty was experienced by the fire fighters in reaching the place where the log was burning.

STILL LOOK FOR VICTIMS' BODIES

Rescue Workers Abandon Hope
of Finding Any Still Alive.

Shanktown, Pa., Jan. 28.—Forty men lost their lives in the explosion which late Saturday wrecked the Lancashire mine of the Barnes & Tucker Coal Company here, according to the best estimates obtainable late Sunday.

Twenty-two bodies have been brought out, and nine miners, who were saved by the prompt efforts of another miner, are in hospitals recovering from the effects of shock and gas. Experienced rescue crews, led by J. D. Parker, of the Pittsburgh station of the bureau of mines, are working in one-hour relays to penetrate the workings and reach the entombed men. All hope that any is alive has been abandoned.

"While no one is quite sure," said Engineer Parker, "there is every reason to believe there were forty victims of the mine disaster. Twenty-two bodies have been located and there is hardly a possibility that the eighteen other miners escaped. The rescue work is proceeding favorably. The main heading has been explored to the face of the mine and the crews are now going into the side entries. We expect to have the mine completely explored in a few hours."

J. O. Durkee, chief mine inspector of the Bethlehem Mine Corporation, is in charge of the Bethlehem crews brought here Saturday night, while T. S. Louthier, district mine inspector, and a party of inspectors from Johnstown also are assisting in directing the work.

The women and children who Saturday night stood in the bitter cold and blinding snow waiting vainly for some news from the workings were induced to go to their homes on the hill above the opening by the Red Cross nurses and the Salvation Army workers, under Colonel Arthur Hopkins, general secretary for western Pennsylvania, who hastened here from Johnstown when news of the tragedy reached that city. They served sandwiches and coffee to the emergency men during the night and comforting the stricken women and children finally led them home. The nurses were then sent to the emergency morgue, at Starford, a neighboring village, where they took charge of the bodies.

The women and children who Saturday night stood in the bitter cold and blinding snow waiting vainly for some news from the workings were induced to go to their homes on the hill above the opening by the Red Cross nurses and the Salvation Army workers, under Colonel Arthur Hopkins, general secretary for western Pennsylvania, who hastened here from Johnstown when news of the tragedy reached that city. They served sandwiches and coffee to the emergency men during the night and comforting the stricken women and children finally led them home. The nurses were then sent to the emergency morgue, at Starford, a neighboring village, where they took charge of the bodies.

RECEPTION FOR KENTUCKY'S SONS

Southern State Plans Home
Coming Celebration June 16 to 22.

Louisville, Ky.—Pennsylvania's 10,000 native Kentuckians are being urged to return to their old homes in June and participate in an old-fashioned Home Coming celebration such as was held here eighteen years ago. The Kentucky Home Coming Association, which has headquarters here, is at present engaged in assembling the names and addresses of all former Kentuckians for its invitation list. Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Erie, Harrisburg and other leading cities of Pennsylvania are expected to send large delegations to the celebration as they have many former Kentuckians included in their populations.

Kentucky is planning to break its record for hospitality when the thousands of visitors swarm through her gates next summer. Voluntary subscriptions amounting to $100,000 will be used in making preparations for the event. And, in order to make each of the seven days of the celebration in Louisville long remembered, an organization of 5,000 volunteer workers already has taken up the task of arranging the minutest detail of the elaborate program.

One of the feature events of the program is to be a monster barbecue which will be the greatest of its kind ever held south of the Mason and Dixon line. In addition to pageants, parades, balls and similar attractions there will be an industrial exposition, erection of a monument to George Rogers Clark, an aerial circus and a military reunion of thousands of soldiers who trained at either Camp Taylor or Camp Knox here during the World War.

Pilgrimages to Harrodsburg for unveiling ceremonies in celebration of the state's founding 150 years ago and to Bardonia to visit the "Old Kentucky Home," that romantic shrine of Kentucky's homing sentiment, will be made during the week of June 16-22.

Following the celebration in Louisville each county of the state will hold a reunion or reception. Arrangements are now being made to obtain reduced railroad fares from all parts of the United States to Louisville during the Home Coming.

MOTOR PATROL WILL EXPLAIN MOTOR LAWS

Opportunity for motorists to receive advice on interpretations of the new motor laws at first hand will be presented by members of the new highway patrol at the February automobile show in Harrisburg, it is promised.

The plan is the result of a belief of many automobile drivers that, while "ignorance of the law excuses no one," it is nevertheless true that fully half of the violations of the law result from ignorance on the part of road users.

FEDERAL LOANS TO BANKS LIKELY

Recapitalization Plan Suggested
to President as Quick Way.

EXPECT DECISION SOON

Northwest Areas, Where Credit
Conditions Are Stringent, Are Ones
Most Under Consideration.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Recapitalization of banks, with the aid of the Government, in stringent credit areas, particularly in the Northwest, was under consideration in some quarters here Sunday as a means of alleviating the conditions to which the Administration has been giving thought the last 10 days.

Information that such program was being studied and had been suggested to the President by some members of Congress revealed also that legislation probably would be sought in a few days to carry out the plan. This is expected to provide for loans direct to stockholders of banks, who would give the Government personal notes, with the bank stock as collateral, under such terms as conditions require. The Federal agency to have jurisdiction over the new loaning facilities has not been chosen, but indications are that the War Finance Corporation is favored.

Regarded As Speedier
Some Administration officials are known to be in accord with the proposal, believing it would enable the President to take more effective steps against the credit stringency in the Northwest and to do it more quickly than could have been done under the recently proposed syndicate of private bankers and financiers. That plan will be abandoned, if the President gives approval to the new suggestion, since all those interested in solving the problem regard time as the essence of their effort.

Belief obtains that Mr. Coolidge will decide within 48 hours on the policy to be followed. He has been impressed with need for speedy action and has informed his advisers of his conviction that something must be done quickly. There were indications that the President would communicate today with some of those interested in the situation, and after that his decision is to be expected.

Desire To Restore Confidence

Nowhere was there any thought that a great amount of money would be required. Treasury officials have insisted the credit situation in the Northwest could be cared for with comparatively small amounts judiciously handled. They have held that the additional money which would be thrown into the breach through the proposed private syndicate or, as now is suggested, through Government loans would serve not only to provide operating funds, but to restore confidence.

The proposal is one of the results of the series of conferences a week ago between Chicago and other Midwest bankers and the four Federal officials: Henry M. Dawes, Comptroller of the Currency; George R. James and J. H. Cunningham, of the Federal Reserve Board, and Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the War Finance Corporation.

More Than 400 Banks
Were Closed Last Year
In the last year more than 400 banking institutions, ranging from State banks, with capital as low as $10,000, to city banks, with assets and liabilities running into millions, have closed their doors in the Northwest. No estimate can be made of the losses in deposits, although it has run into millions.

The silver lining for all these losers, however, lies in the fact that nearly all of the banks were closed because of "frozen credit."

FARMERS' TESTS SHOW BEST OATS FOR PENN'A

State College, Pa.—A step forward has been taken this year by the oat producing farmers of Pennsylvania in standardizing their produce through forty variety demonstrations conducted under the supervision of the State College agricultural extension department in sixteen counties of the State.

The results of the demonstrations, just announced, indicate that the varieties recommended by the extension crop specialists at State College are superior to the local seed with which they were compared. In the northern section of the state, a summary of 27 testings ranged the varieties in the following order: Japan 66-11, Japan 53-11, Victory, New Zealand, Silver Mine, Cornelian, Swedish Select, with local seed bringing up the rear.

The results in the southern section also gave Japan 66-11 first place, followed by Japan 53-11, Victory, Cornelian, Big Four and New Zealand, with the local seed last. The two Japan varieties were developed by C. F. Noll, the plant breeding specialist at State College and the originator of Pennsylvania 44 wheat.

The important point brought out in these demonstrations is the fact that the five leading varieties recommended by the extension specialists out-yielded the local seeds by about five and one-half bushels per acre. The choice between the leading varieties depends largely on local conditions of soil, fertility and type of farming. The Japan varieties are a smaller grain and have a lighter straw, but are good yielders, especially under adverse conditions.

Trade Combine Cited to Make
Answer to U. S. Trade Commission.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Principal corporations engaged in the manufacture and the rendering of radio equipment were charged in a federal trade commission complaint issued Sunday with creating and maintaining a monopoly in radio apparatus and communication.

The companies named, the Radio Corporation of America, General Electric Company, American Telephone and Telegraph Company, Westinghouse company, Western Electric Company, International Radio Company, United Fruit Company and Wireless Specialty Company, were cited to make answer within thirty days to the further charge of "violating the law against unfair competition in trade to the prejudice of the public."

The complaint charges the corporations formed a monopoly by acquiring all the patents controlling manufacture of radio apparatus and hedged these in the Radio Corporation; further, by agreements and cross-licenses, the interests concerned marked out the field of manufacture and distribution in which each was to engage, and laid plans for maintaining their advantage in the future, after expiration of existing patents, by pooling improvement rights.

The whole process, the complaint says, is in restraint of competition, and involves distributing, manufacturing and sales rights under some 2000 different patents, and the splitting up of the Radio Corporation stock between the General Electric, Westinghouse, American Telephone and Telegraph and United Fruit companies.

A series of intercorporate contracts, the complaint charges, gave the Radio Corporation "practical monopoly in transoceanic service, restricted the competition of certain respondents in fields occupied by other respondents, attempted to restrict the use of radio apparatus manufactured and sold."

SHOOTERS HANDICAPPED In Spite of Severe Weather, Club Runs up Good Scores.

Extreme cold and high winds kept down the attendance at the first of three 50 target events on the grounds of the Gettysburg Rod and Gun club Saturday. When one considers conditions the scores hung up by the fourteen shooters are felt to have been good, and indicated that the "winner of the silver trophy will have to display more than average ability."

In the special event, consisting of a "quail shoot" at 15 birds, Mose Bair succeeded in breaking 14.

The next regular shoot will be held on the club grounds on Saturday, February 9th, and in the mean time any shooter who desires to participate in the race for the trophy can arrange with the club officials it is said.

NEWS NOTES FROM TRINITY CHURCH

Attendance Good, Despite Cold;
Vocal Soloists A Feature.

(Contributed)
The attendance at Church School was only slightly affected by the extreme cold weather of Sunday. It was noticeable only in the primary department. The main room seemed about normal.

Attendance at morning worship was affected more than that of the Church School. About 15 children remained for Junior congregation. The minister in speaking on the subject "Chains" mentioned the home and circumstances as two chains of great good to the boys or girls, but bad habits as a chain of great evil.

The special duet for the morning was rendered by Miss Lucille Henry, supervisor of music in the public schools, and Felix Robinson, a student in the Theological Seminary. Miss Henry sang a solo in the evening.

32 DEAD IN EXPLOSION. CHECK UP IN MINE SHOWS

Shanktown, Jan. 28.—Another body was taken from the ruins of the Lancashire Mine here today, bringing the death toll of Saturday afternoon's explosion to 32. The general superintendent said that 4 men remained in the mine, but they were probably at the working faces where it would be impossible to reach them for several days.

Every man who went into the mine has now been accounted for.

NICOLAI LENINE GOES INTO GRAVE

Premier's Coffin Borne Through
Icy Streets on Peasants' Shoulders.

FEW WITNESS LAST RITES

Wife of Russian Soviet Premier is at Side of Bier, Guarded by Group of Old Comrades.

Moscow, Jan. 28.—"Lenine is dead; his work lives!"

This single line flashed from the Government wireless station here Sunday notified Russia and the world of the funeral of the revolutionist. In letters of white on a black background the same line hung above Lenine's body in the Hall of Unions, where the impressive and exotic services took place.

From early dawn the day was a pageant to Lenine's memory. At 7 o'clock Sunday morning the streets were dark, but by 8 it was growing light, the watchfires in the streets were burning palely and the half moon was dull in the mist over the white frozen city.

Few Witness Last Rites

It was one of the coldest days ever remembered in Moscow—30 below zero. There were troops moving through the streets under a canopy of frozen breath, militiamen warming themselves by watchfires, small groups of women beating their breasts with their hands and stamping with their frozen feet, all hurrying toward the center.

Only a few besides members of the Central Committee, Central Executive Committee and diplomatic corps were allowed into the Hall of Unions to witness the last ceremony. In the middle of the hall, under tall palms, was the body of Lenine, in dull khaki, lying on a crimson catafalque and guarded by groups of his old comrades.

Mme. Lenine At Bier

Suddenly a stir ran through the hall and all stiffened to immobility. Mme. Lenine was standing by the bier looking at Lenine's face, calm and dry-eyed as if she were unconscious that he and she were not alone in the room. There was absolute silence. Then came the funeral music of requiem, followed by the "Internationale," after which, when the orchestra had finished the revolutionary dirge, it was sung by all in the hall, while the soldiers, even outside the hall and in the passages, stood at attention.

One had a curious feeling that one was present at the founding of a new religion. There were no speeches. The silence was absolute. The only jarring note was given by a solitary anti-religious fanatic, who wandered half-eyed about the outskirts of the crowd with a long red scarf hung about him like the garment of an officiating priest, and with a Communist manifesto printed on a card and fastened on his breast. No one among the mourners had eyes for him and he presently wandered out of the hall.

Out Into Freezing Air

After the dirge the lid of the coffin, of red silk and with three windows on the top and side, was placed on the coffin and all except the guard of honor and the chief mourners walked silently out into the freezing air, where the sudden terrific cold struck one like a blow.

The mourners waited for the coffin and fell in behind it. The cold was such that only a very few with matted hair were able to remove their fur caps. The people walked with hands at salute, but presently they found even that impossible. They walked between lines of soldiers, each one with his helmet, face and shoulders veiled in hoar frost from his own breath. Four times the little procession stopped while the bearers gave their places to others.

400,000 MOURNERS PASS LENINE BIER

Moscow Virtually Dark in Memory of Dead Russian Chief.

Moscow, Jan. 28.—Moscow's mourning at the bier of Lenin, prolonged a day by postponement of the funeral services from Saturday to Sunday, became a vast and solemn spectacle.

The number of those passing the body of the premier reached the 400,000 mark Friday afternoon. The procession still retained its impressive solemnity, but was beginning to take on the inevitable characteristics of all big public gatherings. Vendors of black and red bouillonettes, portraits of Lenin, biographies, armbands and even sandwiches were crying their wares to the queues within shouting range of the great hall, while at a nearby corner an enterprising lad sold phonograph records of Lenin's speeches.

Inside the building a tiny easel set up within arm's length of the body was used by artist after artist in sketching for future paintings or sculpture, while occasionally glaring lights were turned on and motion picture cameras click.

These activities, however, did not detract from the solemn atmosphere.

A temporary wooden mausoleum was constructed in Red Square. It will be electrically lighted, permitting a view of the coffin after the funeral and interment Sunday.

Honored by the state in having the capital of old Russia renamed Leningrad in his memory, the dead premier was receiving the homage of Communists in other cities and countries of Europe, many of whom were expected for the obsequies.

MOTORIST MUST WATCH HIS STEP

Highway Department Will Be More Strict In Future Concerning Drivers.

Harrisburg.—"In the matter of violations of the automobile laws the State Highway department hereafter will lean away from leniency rather than toward it," said Paul D. Wright, Secretary of Highways.

"Violations of the law have been winked at too frequently," continued Mr. Wright. "Hereafter the State Highway department will revoke or suspend drivers' licenses far more numerous than in the past. The revocations and suspensions will come not only because drivers are convicted in the courts, but will be ordered in all cases of reckless driving and those accidents which show carelessness on the part of motor vehicle operators. When these cases are brought to our attention we will make an immediate investigation and, if the facts warrant, licenses will be revoked for the period of one year or suspended."

During 1923 less than 500 drivers' licenses were revoked outright and only about 475 persons were black-listed. In other words, only one driver in every thousand licensed in Pennsylvania was penalized, while violations of the motor laws occurred by scores of thousands.

"Among other things," said Mr. Wright, "we are going to watch the newspapers of Pennsylvania and every time we see mention of an accident, or every time we read of reckless driving, we are immediately going to put our motor patrolmen on the job and make an investigation. Upon what they tell us we will depend the action taken. When informations are made before magistrates charging drivers with having been intoxicated, we shall suspend the licenses immediately pending the outcome of the case in court, instead of permitting the driver to operate until his case is disposed of."

"The drivers of automobiles are presumed to know the laws and the rules of the road. If they do not it is their own fault and if because of some violation of the motor law they lose their licenses they have none to blame but themselves. The time is here to stop pussyfooting with these fellows, and see what an enforced vacation from the driving wheel will do for them."

Motor patrolmen are now punching the cards of drivers, thus indicating that they have been warned against violations of the law. When the patrolmen again pick up drivers whose cards are punched drastic action will follow.

HERE AND THERE

Odds And Ends Of Local Interest In News Of The Day.

DOGGONE THOSE DOGGONE ANSWERS

The cream of Adams county's wit and humor flows freely even on cold days in the office of County Treasurer Harry Troxell when owners of dogs present themselves for licenses for their animals. Of course the questions asked sound somewhat ridiculous to the average person applying for a dog license, but each has its purpose, so the Bureau of Animal Industry at Harrisburg says.

This morning, the clerk behind the wicker asked the prospective purchaser of a license how old his canine was, to which this answer was given:

"Oh, he's old enough to die." The question, "What kind of a dog is it," also brings forth some unique responses at times.

"It's just a dog, that's all. No particular kind at all. A little bit of collie, a little Boston bull and some mongrel thrown together," was the answer given by one customer, while another rejoined with, "She's a house dog."

January 15 was the last day for allowing dogs to roam with 1923 "license plates" and Treasurer Troxell is calling attention to the fact that unless new tags are procured the owners of dogs with 1923 licenses attached will be prosecuted.

ANOTHER "KING" IS GIVEN THE GATE

Capitol Hill is still laughing about something that happened in the Governor's office Friday.

A man entered, and told a young woman employee of the department he wished to see the Governor.

"Who shall I say wishes to see him?" she asked.

"William Henry, King of Prussia," he replied.

For a moment she looked aghast. Then she smiled and arose.

"Oh, yes, why, of course," she stammered.

"I'm Queen Elizabeth," she added edging out the door.

She whispered to James M. Auter, veteran messenger of the Executive Department, to call State Police to take care of "that crazy man."

Several troopers arrived in a few moments and ejected him from the office, before he had a chance to explain, as he did in the corridor, that "King of Prussia" is not his title but the name of the Montgomery county town he lives in.

IT'S GOING TO BE HARD TRAVELING

COPYRIGHT BY KATHARINE NEWLIN BURT

She tried to return his books, coming with her arms full of them and lifting up eyes that were almost wrangle with renunciation.

"I can't be taking time to read them, Mr. Holliswell," she said, that extraordinary, over-expressive voice of hers running an octave of regret; "an' some way Pierre don't like that I should spend my evenin's on them. Seems like he thinks I was settin' myself up to be knowin' more than him." She laughed ruefully. "Me—knowin' more'n Pierre! It's laughable. But anyways I don't want him to be thinkin' that. So take the books, please. I like them." She paused. "I love them," she said hungrily, and blushing, thrust them into his hands.

"You're wrong, Joan," he said quickly. "You mustn't give in to such a foolish idea. You have rights of your own, a life of your own. Pierre mustn't stand in the way of your learning. You mustn't let him. I'll speak to him."

"Oh, no!" Some intuition warned her of the danger in his doing this.

"Well, then, keep your books and talk to Pierre about them. Try to persuade him to read aloud to you. I shan't be back now till spring, but I want you to read this winter, read, all the stuff that's there. Come, Joan, please me," and he smiled coaxingly.

"I ain't afraid of Pierre," said Joan slowly. Her pride was stung by the suggestion. "I'll keep the books."

She sighed. "Good-by. When I see you in the spring, I'll be a right-learned schoolmarm."

She held out her hand and he took and held it, pressing it in his own. He felt troubled about her, unwilling to leave her in the snowbound wilderness with that young savage of the smoldering eyes.

"Good-by," said Pierre behind him. His soft voice had a click.

Holliswell turned to him. "Good-by, Landis. I shan't see either of you till the spring. I wish you a good winter, and I hope—" He broke off and held out his hand. "Well," said he, "you're pretty far out of everybody's way here. Be good to each other."

"Don't your interference!" said Pierre's eyes, but he took the hand and even escorted Holliswell to his horse.

Snow came early and deep that winter. Pierre had cut and stacked his winter wood; he had sent his cows to a richer man's ranch for winter feeding. There was very little for him to do. After he had brought in two buckets of water from the well and had cut for the day's consumption a piece of meat from his elk hanging outside against the wall, he had only to sit and smoke, to read old magazines and papers and to watch Joan. Then the poisonous roots of his jealousy struck deep. Always his brain, falsely interpreting her wistful silence—she was thinking of the parson, hungry to read his books, longing for the open season and his coming again to the ranch.

In December a man came in on snowshoes bringing "the mail"—one letter for Pierre, a communication which brought heat to his face. The Forest service threatened him with a fine of $100, if he pointed to some saw in his title; part of his property, the most valuable part, had not yet been surveyed. Pierre looked up with set jaws, every fighting instinct sharpened to hold what was his own.

"I hev put in two years' hard work on them acres," he told his visitor, "an' I'm not plannin' to give them over to the first fool favored by the Service. My title is as clean as my hand. It'll take more'n thievery an' more'n spite to take it away from me."

"You better go to Robinson," advised the bearer of the letter; "can't get after them fellers too soon. It's a country where you can easy come by what you want, but where it ain't so easy to hold onto it. If it ain't yer land it's yer horses; if it ain't yer horses it's yer wife." He looked at Joan and laughed.

Pierre went white and dumb; the chance shot had hit him in the wound. He strapped on his snowshoes and bade a grim good-by to Joan, after the man had left. "Don't you be wastin' oil while I'm away," he told her sharply, standing in the doorway, his head level with the steep wall of snow behind him, and he gave her a threatening look so that the tenderness in her heart was frozen.

After he had gone, "Pierre, say a real good-by," she whispered. Her face cramped and tears came.

She heard his steps lightly crunching across the hard, bright surface of the snow; they entered into the terrible frozen silence. Then she turned from the door, dried her eyes with her sleeve like a little village girl, and ran across the room to a certain shelf. Pierre would be gone a week. She would not waste oil, but she would read. It was with the appetite of a starved creature that she fell upon her books.

55 KINDS APPLES GROW IN STATE

Perusal of Crop Reports Shows Number of Varieties Produced.

Harrisburg, Pa.—How many kinds of apples grown in Pennsylvania can you name?

Following a request made to William B. McGrady, Director of the Bureau of Standards of the Pennsylvania Department of Internal Affairs, from the Marketing Bureau of the State Department of Agriculture, that a survey be made of Pennsylvania apples to ascertain the weight per bushel of the numerous brands, it was found by inspectors that 55 different named apples, and possibly more, are grown in Pennsylvania.

The city and county inspectors of weights and measures weighed 1,079 bushels of different kinds and the average weight per bushel of each variety was tabulated. Seventy-four per cent of the tests were made by heaped measure such as is used in good commercial practice. Twenty-six of the tests were made by stricken measure.

The average weight per bushel of the 55 brands of apples found by inspectors was 46.47 pounds. The different brands varied in weight from 45 pounds to 51 pounds per bushel.

The apples and their weights per bushel follow: American Blush, 45; Astrachan, 50; Baldwin, 46; Banana, 45; Bells Flower, 51; Ben Davis, 45; Black Ben, 47; Black Gill Flower, 47; Black Twig, 48; Blue Pearman, 45; Congress, 48; Delaware Red, 47; Delicous, 45; Fallwater, 45; Gano, 47; Glori Mundi, 48; Golden Gate, 46; Greening, 47; Grimes Golden, 46; Jonathan, 45; King, 47; King David, 47; King Tompson, 47; Kitchen Fomwalks, 46; Kramer, 46; London Lady, 49; Lowrie, 47; Manning, 47; Marable Peblin, 45; Nero, 47;

EVERYBODY PAYS

When high taxes come home to roost, as they infallibly do, it is on the ridgepole of your own humble cot. It makes not a whit's worth of difference whether the government sends you a specific tax bill or not. You pay. It is time you know it—and time that, knowing it, you appreciate the solidity of the fact.

The burden which exaggerated costs of government impose falls on you and yours, remarks the Lowell (Mass.) Courier, no matter if you never file a return, no matter if you never pay a direct penny to the treasurer of your city, the treasurer of your state, or the federal collector of internal revenue.

Those who do pay direct taxes invariably lighten the burden on themselves as much as they possibly can. They pass the burden along. They raise prices. They increase rents. They ask more for professional services. They tend more and more to salt their own gains away in untaxable forms. There is hardly an item in your year's list of expenditures that is not made larger by the fact that someone else has been asked to pay a higher tax to the government. The ultimate consumer is the man who, in the end, gets a slice of every taxpayer's load to carry.

This isn't altogether unfair, but it would be much better if the burden which you bear thus indirectly came home to you in the appreciable form of a direct tax. It might make you a little less reckless about your vote. If you saw precisely what was the effect of your occasional follies at the polls you might be a little more exacting as to the candidates you favor. The pay assumption that, as you pay no tax, it doesn't make much difference to you what heights the tax-rate goes to really does cost you money. It is all very well to listen agape to the siren song of the demagogue who prates of "soaking the rich" and letting the "poor" go untaxed—but the poor do not go untaxed and there isn't a way under the shining sun in which that result can be reached, no matter how you fix it. Our affairs are too intimately intermixed.

Cicero's Letters.

His letters are those of an accomplished gentleman, in the finer sense of the word; they show his complete urbanity of social habit; they also show his politely alert familiarity with intelligent thought, with fine art and with literature, Greek and Latin. Here, if ever in the whole course of literature, you find yourself in thoroughly good company; and thoroughly good company implies highly trained minds and manners.—Barrett Wendell.

Market for Costumes.

At intervals a steamer leaves London en route to a port on the east coast of Africa with a cargo of old theatrical costumes. The costumes are imported by traders, who are found all over Africa, and are sold by them to tribes in the interior, the medium of exchange being cattle, curios and animal skins.

Double Window Panes.

Double window panes, separated by a distance of two millimeters and joined together at the edges by a specially patented melting process to prevent moisture or dust getting between them, are used to keep out the cold in the place of ordinary double windows. It is said the heat insulation is perfect under these conditions.

LAUGHTER

'Tis well to laugh and sing and jest
When hearts are at their merriest,
'Tis well to fling the barb of wit
When joy has kissed the tip of it.
But silence is a sweeter thing
Than clever words which bite and sting.

The phrase which brings a smile to birth
And lights the eye with gentle mirth
Is conversation's fairest gem
In friendship's golden diadem.
But oh, be sure whatever you do
That all who hear may laugh with you.

However bright, however smart,
Drive not your jest into the heart.
'Twere better silence dull to keep

Than send another home to weep;
'Twere better not to speak at all
Than poison from your lips should fall.

Comedian, scattering smiles of cheer,
You shall be loved as you revere
What men hold sacred. Never touch
The loveliness men value much;
There are some shrines in every breast
Too pure for mockery or jest.

Laughter should set the eyes aglow,
Not add unto another's woe,
Laughter should soothe the pain of care,
Not give an extra pang to bear;
'Twere better that the brilliant mind
Seem dull than it should prove unkind.

Seek Clerk For Grand Jury
FREDERICK—The bill providing for the appointment of a clerk to grand juries in Frederick county which was introduced in the Legislature on Wednesday by Delegate Bennett also provides for the compensation of such an appointee and also for a penalty in the event such a clerk would disclose any information which is always withheld by the grand jury. In the event the bill is passed, the appointee will be required to subscribe before the Clerk of the Circuit Court that he will keep secret all matters and things occurring before the grand jury. The clerk will be required to take down in shorthand all testimony presented before the grand jury and to furnish the jury and the State's Attorney with a full copy of all such testimony upon request. Any stenographer appointed to this office, who shall violate any of the regulations governing his appointment, will be subject to a fine not exceeding $1,000 or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the Court.

Seek Road Loan Increase
FREDERICK—Representatives of the County Commissioners of Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Frederick, Carroll and Montgomery counties, called upon Governor Ritchie last week to urge him to increase by $300,000 the State roads loan. Governor Ritchie has recommended a loan of $4,500,000 and the Western Marylanders asked him to raise the figures to $5,400,000. William L. Seabrook, counsel to the Commissioners of Carroll county, was spokesman. He said Carroll county figured to get $48,825 from the loan each year, but if one-fifth is given to the city Carroll will get only about $38,600 a year. The shortage of $10,000 from the State and $10,000 from the county for the three years provided for in the loan bill will amount to $60,000. The county men said they did not ask that one-fifth be taken from the city, but they wanted the loan increased so that they would get what they had anticipated.

Reports Miss Ricketts Married
FREDERICK—Is Lulu Ricketts, witness in the Kepner murder case, married or not? Her stepmother, Mrs. E. G. Ricketts, Flint Hill, says she is. Samuel Linebaugh, Hagerstown, father of Wilbur Linebaugh, whom Miss Ricketts is said to have wed, denies that any marriage took place. Linebaugh said he has just received a letter from his son denying that he and Miss Ricketts had been married in Terre Haute, Indiana. The younger Linebaugh said Miss Ricketts was not in Terre Haute. A few days ago Mrs. Ricketts, stepmother of Miss Ricketts, said she had received letters from her saying she had married Linebaugh, and that they were residing in Terre Haute. She gave the street address.

Lost Money Mystery Solved
HAGERSTOWN—This is another story of a smooth-tongued man, a trusting woman, and a disappearing bank account. The smooth-tongued man—Barbon Kenison, aged about 45, chiropractor of Philadelphia and Duluth, Minnesota—is now in the Washington County Jail where he was taken after being arrested Friday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Sam Kaylor on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses. Miss Elizabeth Lord, clerk in a dry goods store at Pitman, New Jersey, came to Hagerstown Friday to have Kenison arrested, and left for her home Saturday a sadder but a wiser woman. "They say experience is the best teacher, but I've paid well for my lesson," she smiled through troubled eyes, as she told of her friendship with the man who borrowed $600 from her and then disappeared. The whereabouts of the disappearing bank account is still a mystery. There is another woman in the case, too. She is known as Mrs. Barbon Kenison, and came here with Kenison when he decided to open offices in Hagerstown. They took rooms at 710 Summit Avenue. Kenison rented offices in the Kohler building on West Washington street and was preparing to open for business when Miss Lord traced him here.

Chamber of Commerce
HAGERSTOWN—A more centrally located Chamber of Commerce which will be a bureau of information on all sorts of subjects is the feature of plans of that body for the coming year it was announced Friday by the president, Dr. Victor Miller, following the directors' luncheon held at St. Paul's M. E. church. Information for tourists, as well as on city, county or state matters will be given out at the Chamber of Commerce office according to Dr. Miller's plan. The directors are now considering a new location, near the center of the town, and it is probable that the Chamber of Commerce offices will be moved within the near future. Plans of the Chamber for the bill to be introduced into the Legislature for changing the city charter are still in the stage of development and will not be announced until the committee has been completely formed. The bill has not yet been drawn up and just what its provisions will be could not be learned. Within a few days, however, it is thought the committee will have some definite progress to report, and a complete outline will be made at the annual meeting of the Chamber to be held February 7.

Husband's Death Kills Wife
HAGERSTOWN—Unable to withstand the shock of the death of her husband, Edward Norris, 77 years old, a retired farmer and Civil War veteran, who died at 6:30 Friday evening at his home near Trego, Mrs. Norris, 72, died about an hour later. Her death is said to have been due to shock. Mr. Norris had been ill for some months, but his condition was not considered serious. He died from general debility. Mrs. Norris was sitting in a chair when she was attacked and died before aid could reach her. Both were members of the United Brethren church of Rhorerville. They both were natives of Washington county and had lived on the farm near Trego for many years.

York

Sunday School Elects
HANOVER—The annual meeting of Emmanuel Reformed Sunday School board was held Friday at 7:30 o'clock, at which time the following officers were elected: Superintendent, Rev. Dr. Abner S. DeChant; first assistant superintendent, Lewis Pratt; second assistant superintendent, Ruel Swartz; secretary, Charles L. Myers; treasurer, John Dell; librarian, Edward Sheeley; leader of orchestra, Walter W. Shultz; director of music, Viola K. Sheeley; pianist, Miss Margaret Stock; assistant pianist, Estella Strickler; officers of the primary department, superintendent, Louise Tanger; assistant superintendent, Mary Bair; pianist, Miss Beachtel; superintendent home department, Mrs. Curtis Keefe; superintendent cradle roll, Mary Bair. The first assistant superintendent was elected to take the place of Claude Hartman, who had served five years. Secretary Charles Myers was elected to take the place of Edward Sheeley.

Quarry Buildings Destroyed
THOMASVILLE.—Two buildings at the quarry of the Thomasville Stone and Lime company burned to the ground Friday evening between 6 and 7 o'clock. The one building housed a Corliss engine, while in the other were several small cans of oil. The loss, not yet estimated, it is said may be several thousand dollars, depending on the damage to the engine. Just what the damage to the engine is will not be known until later. The origin of the blaze is undetermined. The oil in one building aided the flames to consume the two buildings. About 35 employees of the company connected a hose line with a pump, and while they did not succeed in saving the buildings it was through their efforts that the fire was kept from spreading.

Bridge Nears Completion
WEIGELSTOWN.—The newly constructed bridge over the Little Cone-wago creek at Coxen's mill, near here, is now open for one way traffic. Although the bridge is a modern concrete two-way structure, at the present time on one end part of the old one-way bridge has not yet been removed. The detour bridge alongside of the present bridge was built at the bed of the stream, and as soon as the water in the creek rose several feet it was covered, delaying traffic. The county has filled in both ends of the bridge where two deep holes had been for some time after the completion of the main part of the bridge.

Boys Repudiate Confessions
WAYNESBORO.—Joseph Molesworth, aged 11, and John Pryor, aged 13, of Blue Ridge Summit, both charged with the theft of a thousand tickets and a ticket case from the station of the Western Maryland Railroad company at Blue Ridge Summit on the night of December 30 or early on the morning of the following day, were before Squire Miller. After hearing the case the magistrate dismissed the boys because of lack of evidence. The boys were arrested on Saturday by Constable George Rollman on the oath of Edward J. Chapman, head of the Hagerstown division of the Western Maryland railroad police. According to the story of Chapman at the hearing the Molesworth boy signed a confession of the theft in the presence of his school teacher on January 10 in which he admitted that he and Pryor had entered the station on the night the tickets and ticket case were stolen and that they carried the case across the railroad to the Old Mountain Inn, several hundred yards away, and opened it with a hot poker. After opening the case, the boy in his confession said, he and his companion discovered that there was nothing they wanted and that they then returned to their homes.

Plan Popularity Contest
WAYNESBORO.—At a meeting of the fair and convention committee of the Mechanics and A. T. H. and L. Fire companies at the Firemen's hall it was decided to have a popularity contest during the fair, which will be held from February 16 until March 2. The popularity contest will be held by votes to select the most popular woman in Waynesboro. To the woman receiving the largest number of votes a prize of a diamond ring will be given. The second and third prizes will be a gold wrist watch and a lavalliere. In addition to planning for the fair, other business was transacted by the committee. Howard Cramer, fire chief of the two companies, was named to confer with the railroads for the purpose of securing reduced rates for the annual convention of the Cumberland Valley Volunteer Fire association which will have its sessions here August 20, 21 and 22. All of the money made during the fair and other entertainments until next August will be placed in a treasury fund toward defraying expenses of the convention.

To Repave Lincoln Way
CHAMBERSBURG.—A conference, arranged for by State Senator Long, and for which Senator Long introduced the Chambersburg council street committee—Messrs. Pfoutz, Forbes, Culbertson—and Borough Solicitor Wingerd to Commissioner Wright of the department of highways, was held at the capitol Thursday afternoon, when the Chambersburg council committee presented the matter of the state helping to pave Lincoln Way through town. The committee asked the commissioner if the state would pay for its share of the paving, that is a strip of the street 18 feet wide. The commissioner said it would, and arrangements were made to have the committee present its plan in writing.

FARM CALENDAR

Farm Radio Program—Tune in on WPAB every Monday night at eight o'clock and get the latest farm "dope" from the Pennsylvania State College. Good music, too!

The Spring Hatch—Are your incubators and brooder stoves ready for the coming hatching season? Now is the time to inspect this equipment carefully and order any necessary parts which will increase the possibilities of a successful season. Thermometers and control wafers should be tested to see that they record temperatures accurately. It may be advisable to set up the machine and run a short test on them.

Care of the Garden Seed—After the seed order arrives, it is important to keep the seed in a dry place where an even temperature is maintained. Seeds will lose their germinating power and vitality very rapidly in a damp place where the temperature changes frequently. Dryness is more important than temperature.

Feeding the Calf—The calf should be given milk of uniform temperature from day to day. Milk between 80° to 100° F. gives best results. Do not give the calf milk that has started to sour. The pail should be cleaned in winter each time after using just as well as it is cleaned in summer time.

The Small Poultry House—Have you a small poultry flock in your back yard? If so, there are four main things to be looked for in your small poultry house. These are plenty of fresh air, dryness, plenty of sunlight, and space enough to allow birds to exercise and keep comfortable. All of these things mean healthier birds and more eggs.

COLLEGE LOSES
TO SUSQUEHANNA

Rogowicz, Football Star, Is High Scorer In Close Game.

The Gettysburg College basketball team met defeat at the hands of Susquehanna College passers on the latter's floor Saturday night, score 35 to 34. From start to finish the game was nip and tuck with Gettysburg leading by a scant two-point margin at the end of the first period.

Rogowicz, Susquehanna's noted football star, was high scorer of the evening's engagement, having caged nine field goals for a total of 18 points. His playing was the outstanding high spot of the game.

Gerhart, Gettysburg's tall tip-off man, was second high scorer, with a total of 13 points to his credit. His playing was the one redeeming feature of Gettysburg's game.

Following is the lineup and detailed score:

Susquehanna Position Gettysburg
Kurtz forward Emanuel Trebles forward Peduzzi
Rogowicz center Gerhart
Briggs guard Fisher
Thomas guard Bream

Field goals: Kurtz, 5; Trebles, 1; Rogowicz, 9; Thomas, 1; Emanuel, 3; Peduzzi, 1; Gerhart, 6; Fisher, 1; Bream, 1. Fouls: Briggs, 1 of 2; Thomas, 2 of 2; Emanuel, 2 of 4; Peduzzi, 2 of 4; Gerhart, 1 of 1; Fisher, 3 of 4; Bream, 2 of 5. Substitutions: Bannon for Trebles; Barbour for Bream. Western New York reported a steady market with barrels of A2 1/2 inches and up Baldwins from cold storage selling at $4.00 to $4.25, mostly $4.00 per barrel. Round bushel baskets of 2 1/4 inches and up Baldwins from common storage ranged from 85c to $1.00 per bushel. In the Wenatchee section of Washington, fancy Winesaps of medium and large sizes brought 95c to $1.00. In the Yakima district medium and large extra fancy Winesaps sold at $1.25 per box in carload lots, f. o. b. usual terms.

MID-YEAR CLASS
TO BE GRADUATED

State College, Pa.—The annual mid-year graduation exercises will take place at the Pennsylvania State College on Tuesday night when almost 100 degrees will be awarded by President John M. Thomas. Every since the war period the undergraduate classes have been irregular and now the college finds it advisable to give extra work in the summer time and allow those who so desire to complete their course in less than the usual four-year period.

Fifty-five of the 91 young men and women to receive degrees next week are just completing their work in final examinations being held this week. Six of the remainder get advanced degrees and the balance completed their college work during the last summer session. This will be the first opportunity for the college to award the degrees earned by these former students.

To take the places left vacant in the student body by these graduations the college has broken all precedents and is preparing to admit a "replacement class" of freshmen not to exceed 100 in number.

MELLON WARNS OF STOCK FRAUDS

Gives Timely Hints In View Of Thousands Of Dollars Lost.

HOW TO SPEND YOUR MONEY

A table, headlined, "How Three Men Divide Their Income," is given by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, as follows, the figures given applying to the Tightwad, Spendthrift and the Thrifty Man, respectively:

	P.C.	P.C.	P.C.
Living expenses	37	58	50
Education	1	1	10
Giving	1	1	10
Recreation	1	40	10
Savings	60	0	20

With a special warning against investing in unsound securities, the Government's Thrift Week campaign has been carried to all parts of the United States. Inasmuch as thousands of dollars were lost by Adams county investors the past year in valueless stocks, the messages sent out by Federal officials in connection with Thrift Week come with special emphasis.

Not all stock salesmen are offering worthless stock, and often reliable and trustworthy men unfortunately engage in the sale of securities that appear to be sound, but which do not "pan out." The Government's warning is for the person of limited resources whose savings should be protected and who cannot afford to speculate or run the risk of losing what he has accumulated.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon estimates that more than $500,000,000 was taken from small investors of the United States in the past year by swindlers and those who promoted highly speculative venture.

Here are eleven warnings from the Government for investors.

"1. Never buy stock in mines you know nothing about. Mining is a very expensive undertaking. Shun alluring promises about mines in a faraway land. While some mines may be good, often unscrupulous men start mining ventures just to obtain your money. In many cases they never intend to develop a mine. There is an old saying: 'A mine is a pot where fools dump their money.'

"2. None but the rich can afford to trifle with oil wells. There are many good mining and oil investments, but how can you tell the good from the bad, or know the intentions of the promoter? Drilling for oil is expensive. The chances are great. A 'gusher' is rare. You may find a well that yields ten barrels a day for a month, or you may find your well is dry. In many cases there never is a well except on paper.

"3. Schemers take advantage of every important discovery or invention. Recently, in the wake of radio came countless stock-selling schemes. Many invested and lost. Some promoters may have good intentions, but others have only promises to sell. A patent may be only the right to a law suit.

"4. Do you want to buy a swamp? There are real estate promoters who will sell you swamps as 'shore frontage.' If you buy property buy near home. Then you can see what you are getting. Long distance buying is dangerous. Know what you are buying. Investigate personally before you make a purchase.

Cautious As to Mail Buying
"5. Look out for new companies that are going to sell by mail. No money will come in until sales are made, and sales require a good organization and time. They may never earn more than salary money, and that is paid out.

"6. 'New manufacturing methods' should always be personally checked and investigated. If you lack experience in making this examination, get an expert's views.

"7. 'Invest quick, or it may be too late,' is the favorite urge of the wildcat stock salesman. That should make you suspicious. The swindler fears investigation. His fakes sell best when he rushes you off your feet. Many have lost because they did not 'sleep over it.'

"8. Look with suspicion on offers with special inducements in cash discounts or stock bonuses. Such an offer may be a trap, and many have been lured to misfortune by it.

"9. Your banker will tell you that 'tips' on the stock market are worthless. Those who have advance information will not tell you when they can profit themselves. But the 'slick blue sky' stock salesman will tell you in confidential whispers, 'it's straight from the inside.' You may be tempted, but do not think you will be let in 'on the ground floor.'

Hits At Speculation
"10. The rich man can afford to speculate. If he loses he has other money in bank. Not so the small investor, the man on a salary with a family to support. If his speculation fails, it spells disaster, and he has not money to tide him over the unexpected. Never play the stock market on 'margin.' Avoid the buckshot. If you buy stocks outright for investment, do so through a member of a legitimate exchange.

"11. Stock in companies being reorganized on the success of others rarely turns out well. A going concern has a great advantage and will not allow a new comer to take over its business. Do not put your money into another man's dreams."

HE RELIES ON HIS MEMORY

Blind Student in California High School Recites After Hearing Lesson Read.

Twelve years in school and has never seen a textbook. That is the record of Leroy Calvin Hendricks, a student in the University of Southern California high school, who has been blind since birth.

Calvin was graduated from grammar school in 1920. There were two other blind students in his class and the trio shared the distinction of being the first blind students to be graduated from a public school west of Chicago. They used the Braille system while studying their textbooks, but recited with the other students who could see.

Since his entrance to high school three years ago Calvin has not used the Braille system, except for taking class notes. His mother reads all of his lessons to him and he relies upon his memory for his class recitations.

He now is taking a general course, consisting of public speaking, English and political science, but intends to specialize in harmony work when he gets in the university. It is his ambition to become a great pianist, and those who have heard him play claim that he is already well on his way.—Los Angeles Times.

Insured Against Fun Films.
A novel insurance policy has just been issued by Lloyd's underwriters, says London Tit-Bits. It insures cinema-goers against death from excessive laughter while in the theater.

Recently several persons have been so affected by the hilarious nature of highly amusing films as to need medical attendance, and in more than one case death has resulted.

The policy which, in the sum of £800, covers a period of six months and has been taken out by the Associated First National Pictures, Ltd., to cover similar occurrences in the case of their new films.

While in no case has the proprietor of a picture theater been held liable for any untoward result of mirth upon the audience, the present policy is said to have been taken out to reassure the public and as a step forward in making the theater safe for hilarity!

China's Wheelbarrows

China is said to be just a preliminary yawn and stretch. A recently returned traveler says: Almost all the freight in Tsinanfu, a walled city of 800,000 inhabitants at the land end of the Shantung railway, in China, is moved in wheelbarrows. Some of the loads are thus conveyed distances of 15 to 20 miles a day. Wheelbarrows also handle passenger traffic. "My lady" frequently returns from her shopping tours with her bundles on one side and herself on the other. Half a dozen people may ride in front of a puffing and perspiring coolie. The wheel is in the center of the barrow, which aids in balancing the load. If it is unusually heavy, another man or boy helps to pull by means of a rope or strap thrown across his shoulders. In a very few instances a mule is the assistant, but it requires a man to lead the mule.
